Foundations for Healthy Sexuality: Clinical Care for Survivors of Childhood Sexual Abuse

Brent Satterly, PhD, LCSW

Friday, January 22nd, 2010 9:00am-4:00pm

University Center | Webb Room

CSA Core 1 | LT elective | 6 CE Credits

Workshop Description

Human sexuality is one of the basic foundations for life. From before birth, individuals are sexed, gendered and bombarded with messages about who they are, who they should be and how they are expected to behave. Because sexuality is one of the central and organizing components of the human experience, sexual trauma in childhood can be especially problematic and debilitating for adults and children. This program will provide a comprehensive strengths-based model of human sexuality and development as a foundation for sound clinical care of survivors of childhood sexual abuse. Helping survivors re-assess, reclaim, and re-norm their sexuality as part of their healthy personhood will be addressed.

This workshop is the Core Knowledge Part 1 for the Child Sexual Abuse Treatment Certificate Program and also applies as an elective to the Loss and Traumatic Stress Certificate Program.* Participants do not need to be enrolled in a certificate program to attend this workshop.

Objectives

Participation in this program will enable you to:

- Identify three primary dimensions (Circles) of a comprehensive model of healthy human sexuality.
- Identify at least three areas of healthy human sexuality in your formal sexuality education.
- Understand how counter-transference can influence clinical decisions about healthy sexual development in children.
- Identify three healthy sexuality messages that can be sent in three stages of childhood development.
- Identify how an understanding of healthy sexuality provides a clinical foundation for survivors of sexual trauma.
- Apply clinical skill sets by analyzing clinical vignettes of survivors of childhood sexual abuse.
